Uinta Forest Photo Contest

The US Forest Service suggests hunting with a camera often can be just as rewarding as hunting with a rifle or bow and arrow.

Ranger Harold E. Laird of Nephi, chairman of Uinta National Forest Diamond Jubilee celebration photo contest, this week urged residents of the area to look over the color prints or slides exposed this year in the Uinta Forest.

The contest is divided into two categories: human interest and scenery.

The rules:

--Anyone may submit photos taken on the Uinta National Forest between Jan. 1 and Nov. 27.

--All entries must be five-by-seven inch color prints with negatives or slides.

--First copyrights to winning photos will be purchased by and become the property of the Uinta
